Memorial Service Held For Currie

—:o:—

The whole Dominion of Canada was shocked to hear on the air Thursday morning, November 30th, that Sir Arthur Currie, Commander-in-Chief of the Canadian Corps in France, had passed away at 2:50 a.m. To those who served under him it was a reminder of those days "over there" when every day brought its tale of loss. The local B.E.S.L. conducted appropriate services in the theatre at 3 p.m. Sunday afternoon. The veterans lined up at the Town hall and marched to the theatre where the memorial service was conducted by Rev. W. S. Brooker, Chaplain of the local organization. Rev. Brooker took as his text "No man hath power to retain the Spirit in the day of death and there is no discharge in this war" from which he preached a very appropiate and searching address.

Big Welfare Concert To Be Held Dec. 11th

Very Interesting And Varied Program

The committee in charge of this programme have been working day and night to make this event one of the outstanding features of the year, 1933. Local artists are contributing their talents, GRATIS, and we are listing the full programme below.

The committee is now arranging for two prizes that will go to the holders of the lucky tickets, which will be drawn from the hat at the concert. Anyone purchasing a ticket for this concert will have a chance at these prizes, whether they are in the hou esor not.

We would suggest that if you buy a ticket and cannot attend, that you write your name and address on each end of the back of the ticket and ask your ticket seller to turn in your ticket for the draw.

Your support for this Welfare Fund is earnestly asked and for the small sum of 50 cents you will help to put a pair of shoes or a suit of underwear on some poor kiddie who has not the proper apparel to weather the cold snaps that are to come. A year from now you will not miss these few pennies, but that kiddie we have in mind will remember it for months to come. Loosen up the old purse strings and buy your ticket from the first of our agents that approaches you.

The ladies of the Women's Institute are compiling their lists now and we understand that it is going to tax their funds to the limit to take care of the many needy in this district.

Numbered tickets for the sale of a Beautiful Reading Lamp are now on sale for a small sum of 10c. The draw for this lamp will be made at the concert. Be sure and be there. Your ticket might be the lucky one. WHO CAN TELL?

Is This Progress?

Were it not for the occasional event of great significance, civilization would stagger on towards whatever goal it is heading, without mankind being any the wiser, or the more acutely aware of its steady progression. World statesmen occasionally venture the prediction that another great war inevitably would wreck the civilization of today; and the statements of these prominent men would undoubtedly be taken at their face value, were it not for sporadic manifestations of the dynamic basis which distinguishes western civilization. Other men of renown have said civilization has no goal, no great achievements to its credit, in that it is not increasing and has not increased, the sum total of human happiness. But again, some event hits the front pages of the daily newspapers indicating its triumphal march-somewhere, which completely confounds Cassandra-like prophets and claimants of stagnation.

The events which have called forth this opening paragraph are, of course, those which occurred recently in the great and glorious State of California. There, two confessed kidnappers were summarily lynched by an irate, small-town, crowd which, instead of being punished for usurping the functions of the state itself, are exonerated and even lauded by the chief dignatory of that state. In fact, Governor Rolph was so far from taking punitive measures against the crowd which (perhaps) saved his hangman a job, that he declared to the press his wish that he had the power to release all kidnappers held in California State prisons to the tender mercies of the same mob. It might, he added, act as a deterrent to kidnappers elsewhere in the United States. Thus civilization marches.

Possibly there is truth in his contention. It is equally true, however, that rigorous enforcement of the laws entrusted to his administration would serve the selfsame purpose and achieve as good results. If his commendation is to mean that lynch law can be invoked with impunity in the warfare against kidnapping, it might be urged that the cure is as bad as the disease. In fact, the cure was itself a disease which it took more than half a century of repression to eradicate. Governor Rolph is dabbing in a strange homeopathy; and perhaps he would be employed better in tightening up the law and its enforcement; through the police and the courts, than thus encouraging revival of a discredited atavism. That law-breakers should lynch law-breakers is, in effect, a protest against the law's delays and not the inefficiency of a law-enforcing machinery. Perhaps then, Governor Rolph should begin the clean-up against kidnappers nearer his own office.

* * * * * * * *

They have a new premier in France. M. Chautemps is, in fact, the 101st premier France has had in some 63 years. Apparently the motto over the door of the office reserved for the chief excutive in France is "Here today, gone tommorrw."

Old Lawrence Sterne it was who said: "They do things better in France." It would be hard to persuade those accustomed to the more staid and dignified British process of placing and replacing Prime Ministers, to agree with this sweeping statement. Changes in the French cabinet are made without involving the machinery of an election. They just change—that is all. A prime minister comes, and collects a cabinet around him, not of those adhering to his own political party or even sharing his political faith. He selects such individuals as appear to him to have sufficient of a loyal following among their particular groups as to ensure him a majority of the deputies. The parliament runs its course. Ministers change without consulting their platform to the people. The system removes government from the people, and tends inevitably to place the real authority in the higher class of permanent officials of the civil service. Responsible government, as Canadians know it, is impossible under such a system, while the bargaining that invariably precedes the formation of a French cabinet injects a pork-barrel element into the political arena which is repugnant to western minds.

Shipment Arrived In First Class Condition

British Firm Well Satisfied With Honey From Saskatchewan

Saskatchewan honey arrived in Great Britain in first class condition. The honey, a carload shipment, was sent to Britain on the S.S. Brandon, via the Hudson Bay, to British importing firms.

R. W. Pugh, provincial apiarist, states that W. Waldron, Saskatchewan markets representative in England, and Mr. Keith, of the Canadian publicity department, made a personal inspection of the honey at the London dock. They write that the honey landed in first class condition, the cartons being clean and the honey in a uniformly good state.

The British importing firm to which the honey shipment was consigned, writes as follows: "We are exceedingly satisfied as the honey has been delivered in excellent condition and the quality is first class."

Trying Out New Uniforms

Japanese Soldiers To Report On Silk And Wool Cloth

Official amusement expressed by the Japanese War Office over a report that silk uniforms were to be provided for the soldiers, has apparently been retracted. Experimental uniforms have now been issued to some battalions. Some of the uniforms are made entirely of silk, but most of the cloth is a mixture of wool and raw silk. The silk-clad soldiers will be asked what they think of the new uniforms and especially in preserving warmth, effects of rain and snow on them, cost of washing and repairing.

Gliding Record For England

Gliding record for England was set up by J. Laver, of the Dorset Gliding Club, at Thirsk. He remained in the air seven hours and twenty-two minutes. Mr. Laver might have continued for a longer period, but darkness interfered with visibility. Heavy rain was falling when he landed. The world record is held in Germany and exceeds thirty-six hours.

A Periodical Check Up

Would Mean Better Health States New Orleans Doctor

"See your doctor, not your undertaker," was the message Dr. C. J. Miller, of New Orleans left at the American College of Surgeons for those who neglect to check up on their health occasionally.

He revealed that in spite of the great advances in hygiene in the last 30 years, many thousands of persons are "called" before their time simply from their own neglect.

Smallpox, for example, is almost completely preventable; yet, he said, there are 100,000 cases of it each year in the United States. Typhoid also is almost 100 per cent. preventable, he declared, but nearly 8,000 die of the disease annually.

Formula For Long Life

Woman, 109 Years Old, Gives Some Good Advice

Women, if you want to live to be 100, among other things, don't put anything on your face that you wouldn't put in your stomach.

Such was the advice of Dr. Marie Charlotte De Goliere Devenport, born 109 years ago, she said, in St. Peterburg, now Leningrad, Russia. The doctor, on a lecture tour, gave the following formula for long life:

"Never get angry; learn self-control; develop agility; be quick and lithe, not musclebound; avoid excesses in all things; don't put anything on your face that you wouldn't put in your stomach; don't let your mind die."

Dickens Was Once President

When Lord Hambledon presided at the Festival Dinner of the Newsvendors' Benevolent Institution in London, England, it made the seventh occasion during 94 years on which the head of the firm of W. H. Smith and Son has acted in that capacity. Charles Dickens was president for 16 years, and took the chair at the dinner on four occasions.

Coal King's Rise And Fall

Valuable Treasures Collected By Pennsylvania Man Sold For Song

Under a mammoth circus tent, on a weed-grown estate where once played some of the world's most glamorous social lights, an auctioneer at Uniontown, Pennsylvania barked out the epilogue of a drama of the rise and fall of a king of coal. And as piece after piece of the treasures collected from over the world by the late J. V. Thompson fell under the hammer, the husky-voiced hawker shouted, "Why, they're going for a song—going for a song!" They continued to go for a "song," and three hours after the sale began a throng of art connoisseurs and society notables had spent only about $11,000. The highest price paid for any article was $2,400 for a beautiful Kirminshah rug which Thompson bought for $20,000 while on a honeymoon in Constantinople with his Broadway showgirl bride, the Honey Hawes. A richly designed Italian scarf, the first article to be sold, brought $18. A $7,500 antique tabriz Persian rug went for $685.

Profit In Forestry

Under Proper Conditions Tree Growing Promises Sure Returns

Planting forests frequently has been praised as profitable business, but generally has not made much of an appeal to private enterprise. The crop is too long in growing. Nevertheless, as an undertaking for governments and for long-lived institutions tree growing under proper conditions promises sure reutrns.

Foresters of Michigan State College recently estimated the crop value of a planting of white pine made on college lands forty years ago. The land used was valued at the time at $15 per acre and the total cost of trees, planting labor and all other expenses in connection with the project has been $32.75 an acre. The value of the timber on each acre at present market prices is estimated at $158.75.

College authorities therefore compute that the trees have earned compound interest at the rate of 4.05 per cent. for the forty-two years.

Writing For The Cinema

Canadian Films Will Soon Be Taking Prominent Place

Capt. Howe, a member of the board of directors of the Canadian Films Producers, addressed the Canadian Women's Press Club at Toronto on "Writing for the Cinema." He traced the history of the industry generally and particularly in Canada, expressing his conviction that in an unbelievably brief period the Canadian film will be taking its place among the pictures of the world—th's despite the fact that so far Canada had been so lagging in the race that she might be considered as having hardly started.

The speaker compared the films of the various countries, pointing out their fine qualities and the reverse, assuring his audience that he was confident that in Canada there was not only people qualified to write for the cinema but that Canada had the material for the production of films that should be second to none.

It Happens Frequently

People Travelling In Europe Forget Most Foreigners Speak English

An Englishman who knew no language but his own had lost his way in Rome. In his perplexity it occurred to him to write the name of his hotel in large letters on his card and hand it to the first benign-looking individual he met.

An Italian thus accosted turned, and with the charming manners of his race, accompanied the perturbed Englishman for about 20 minutes in silence until they reached the hotel designated. Then the tourist poured out voluble thanks in the only language at his command.

The Italian looked at him in amazement, then remarked in perfect English: "I thought you were deaf and dumb!"

Has Lived Long Life

Ontario Woman Recently Celebrates Her 103rd Birthday

Still interested in living her century over again, Mrs. Miranda W. Hillyard recently entered her 103rd year. She was born in Frost Village, Quebec, in 1831, and has a vivid recollection of the soldiers scouring the district in 1837 on the hunt for Papineau's rebels.

Her parents were Edmund Winchester and his wife, Dorothy Durrell, both of United Empire loyalist stock. In early life Mrs. Hillyard came to Ontario, and her husband, Robert Hillyard, a banker, died in St. Mary's in 1893. Her one son served in the South African war in 1900, and settled in that country. She has a married daughter in Philadelpala and another at home.

WORK IS EASIER NOW FAT HAS GONE

"I was so stout about 11 months ago," a woman writes, "that I became a burden to myself. Then muscular rheumatism set into my joints, and I had to go on sticks for some time. Then I started to take Kruschen Salts, and I am overjoyed with the results I have derived from them. Honestly, I had no idea one could feel so different in such a short time. Since taking Kruschen, I have lost nearly 28 lbs. of superfluous fat. I can now run about as well as when I was 20, cook, work, and attend to seven growing children."—(Mrs.) G. H.

Unlike certain drastic drugs, Kruschen does not aim to reduce by rushing food through the body; its action is "not" confined to a single part of the system. It has a tonic influence upon every organ of elimination, every gland, every nerve, every vein. Gently, but surely, it rids the system of all fat-forming refuse, of all poisons and harmful acids which give rise to rheumatism, digestive disorders, and many other ills.

Arctic Cold At Equator

Instruments Register Twenty Degrees Lower At Similar Altitude

If you were looking for a colder place than the north pole, you certainly would not go to the equator to find it, would you? As contrary to fact as the statement may seem to be, unless you did this very thing your quest would end in disappointment. Meteorologists have found that it is actually colder at the equator than it is at the north pole! For proof of this scientists journeyed to the tropics and from a position on the equator, they send up sounding balloons equipped with meteorological instruments. At heights six or seven miles above the equator the instruments registered a temperature that was 20 degrees over the Arctic regions. As an explanation of this phenomenon it is suggested that the re-radiation of heat from the surface of the earth at the equator is retarded by humid air.

Our Best Pleasures

Six Rules By Which They May Be Tested

The best pleasures are first, the simplest—pleasures which require least machinery; least effort on the part of others; second, the least expensive; third, the most accessible; fourth, those that can be most widely shared; fifth, those that can be most often repeated without doing harm to body, mind, or soul; sixth, those that call into action the highest qualities of life. The best pleasures are what we might call top-floor pleasures; that is, the pleasures of mind and spirit. If we test our pleasures by such laws as these, they will take us outdoors instead of indoors; to nature, and not to artificial things; to wholesome exercise, and not just to idle entertainment; to music, friendship, and books rather than to excitement and things that are artificial.

Procedure To Be Abolished

No More Advance Information About Grants To Fairs

The Federal Department of Agriculture's established procedure of informing fair and exhibition managements well in advance the amount of the government grant they will probably receive, is to be abolished this year.

Delegates to the Canadian Association of Fairs and Exhibitions were told at their last annual meeting that there will be no advance intimations this year. George B. Rothwell, head of the livestock divis'on of the department of agriculture, made the announcement. He said the department's estimates would be subject to revision by the government, even if the House passed them.

Faithful To Old Tradition

South African Dutch Still Greatest Bible-Reading Race

Worthy descendants of the world's greatest Bible-reading race, the South African Dutch, are proving faithful to the old-time tradition. It was expected that the new Afrikaans Bible would be a best seller, and a first edition of 100,000 copies were ordered by the British and Foreign Bible Society. But so heavy has been the demand that a cable has been sent instructing the printers to increase the edition to 150,000 copies.

BUCKLEY'S Gives You Far More For Your Money

Buckley's goes many times as far as ordinary cough remedies, because it can be diluted with water without impairing its marvellous healing and soothing qualities, and because only a few glasses are needed to put the most stubborn cough or cold out of business. Even one sip of Buckley's gives unmistakable relief.

That's why people say, "It acts like a flash" —"A single sip proves it".

No dope — no sweet sickly syrup — but a scientific formula that stops the cough—heals and soothes. Play safe. Refuse substitutes. Buckley's is sold everywhere.

Lord Lonsdale's Model Estate

Every Small Detail Of Management Watched By Owner

Lord Lonsdale, in addition to his many-sided sporting interests, is chairman of a publishing firm. He has wonderful way with animals—in particular with horses and dogs, and birds. At meal times at Lowther each privileged dog comes into the dining-room, goes sedately to its own particular corner, and there settles quietly with one eye fixed watchfully on Lord Lonsdale's movements. The stables would give any maker of films a mass of material no other establishment of these days could offer, says the Overseas Mail. They are magnificently run in the old-fashioned English manner—as, indeed, the whole house is—without any regard to the modern love of informality and speed. Lord Lonsdale has kept all his old coaches and carriages—in themselves a small museum which will interest future generations. All of them are painted the bright yellow which makes his cars so recognizable at race meetings today. And he himself watches every small detail of the estate's management—even to the laying out of the gardens, which was done to his particular instructions; each is of a different character, Italian, French, and so on.

Air Fields Across Canada

Within A Year Stations Will Be Ready For Service

A year from now air fields across Canada will be ready for a trans-Canada air service, Brigadier J. Lindsay Gordon, commanding officer of M.D. 12, told the Young Men's Board of Trade at Regina.

Single unemployed, Brigadier Gordon pointed out were doing work that would prove a boon to the future of aviation in Canada. The great obstacle to a trans-Canada route in the past, the northwestern part of Ontario, was the scene of camps for the preparation of airports.

By next fall Canada would have ground facilities to permit the establishment of an air line from Halifax to Vancouver, Brigadier Gordon pointed out. This would lie on the shortest route from Europe to Asia. The Pan-American airways had already received concessions on a portion of the route, which would have a terminus in Newfoundland.

He spoke of the possibility of competing with the United States in Oriental silk shipments, although, he said, passenger traffic was so small in Canada as not to merit the operation of an air line simply for passenger purposes.

Foreclosure Proceedings

Large Tracts Of Land In Manitoba and Saskatchewan Are Involved

Foreclosure proceedings involving first mortgage debentures in excess of $850,000 and second mortgage debentures of $713,000 on large tracts of land in Saskatchewan and Manitoba settled during the past eight years by Mennonites, have been taken in Saskatchewan courts. By an order made recently arrears must be paid by October 3, 1934, or foreclosure will become absolute.

The debenture bonds first issued were sold to large investors in Canada while the second issue bonds were sold mainly to Mennonites already settled in Canada and the United States. The company promoting the settlements was the Intercontinental Company. The National Trust Company has been named trustee for the first mortgage debenture holders.

The decision of the court does not affect the position of the numerous settlers.

On Job Seventy-Six Years

English Hand Knitter Ninety Years Old Still Working

Who is the United Kingdom's eldest worker? One, Robert Harrison, of Calverton, Nottinghamshire, England, can lay a strong claim to this title, for though in his 90th year he is still working at his job of turning out half-hose.

Seventy-six years ago, when only 13, he began work in the little cottage industry in Calverton. He was then one of several hundred workers. Today he is one of a dozen or so who are keeping alive the ancient trade of hand-frame knitting in a machine-dominated world. He has been in the employ of one firm, Morley's, whose senior craftsman he is, the whole of his working life.

Aviator Had Narrow Escape

Vulture Crashed Into Front Of Imperial Airways Liner

Thrilling adventure befel the Imperial Airways liner "Arethusa" on its journey from Gaya, India, to Calcutta. A vulture suddenly appeared ahead and crashed into the front of the cockpit, just below the glass-screen. By the force of the impact, the plating was bent inwards and cut open the pilot's hand. The bird was killed outright.

Will Never Be Expert

The Prince of Wales spoke of his practice with the chanter (part of the bagpipe) at a Masonic banquet in Edinburgh. "It is true that some months ago I was learning a few tunes," said the Prince. "If ever I am able to play in a pipe band in Edinburgh I should be very pleased, but I should never give a solo."

WHEAT BOARD NECESSARY TO SOLVE PROBLEM

Calgary, Alberta.—Wheat marketing boards for the large wheat exporting countries of the world, each with control of the entire production of its country, were suggested by Premier J. E. Brownlee, of Alberta, in an address to the annual meeting of the Alberta wheat pool. The government leader suggested Canada should take the lead and establish such a wheat board. The wheat problem would never be solved under the present marketing system, he said.

Intimating the next few months will see methods considered in Canada of implementing a plan for wheat acreage limitation, the premier said the plan must only be considered as a temporary measure to aid general world recovery. He recommended each individual farmer reduce acreage and each country place sale of its wheat under one control.

Discussing financial policies, Mr. Brownlee said he hoped when a settled monetary policy was achieved by the United States it would be accepted as a standard for the world. He blamed the world's surplus of wheat on financial policies of Canada and the United States in adhering so long to the gold standard.

The recent international wheat conference in London was the first attempt to break down extreme nationalism, Hon. M. A. MacPherson, Attorney-General for Saskatchewan, told pool members here.

"There is some hope in the world that reason will prevail when 22 nations can get together around a table and agree on an international policy," he said. Mr. MacPherson, who attended the London conference, reviewed the many problems of the present wheat situation.

Hon. John Bracken, Premier of Manitoba, also addressed the delegates.

Mr. Bracken said the problem of grain production had been solved "where it is capable of being solved."

"The problem not solved," he said, "is that of distribution of wealth produced and it is a far more difficult one."

Resigns From Cabinet

Hon. E. B. Ryckman Relinquishes Duties On Account Of Ill Health

Ottawa, Ont.—Hon. E. B. Ryckman, Minister of National Revenue, has resigned, according to an announcement made by the Prime Minister.

Announcement of Mr. Ryckman's resignation was made in the following terms:

"The Hon. E. B. Ryckman, K.C., M.P., Minister of National Revenue since the formation of the present government in 1930, has been compelled to relinquish his ministerial duties because of failing health. He has tendered his resignation to the Prime Minister, and his Excellency the Governor-General has accepted the same. Mr. Ryckman remains a member of the House of Commons.

"The Prime Minister and the members of the government keenly regret that one of their colleagues is compelled, for reasons of health, to resign his cabinet position, and earnestly hope that a period of complete rest will restore him to his normal health."

No mention has yet been made in official circles of a successor to Mr. Ryckman.

Denounces Newsreel

London Times Decries Presentation Of American Sensationalism

London, Eng.—The Times has denounced in a vigorous editorial an American newsreel motion picture showing a reconstruction of the murder of Brooke Hart, wealthy young Californian, and the lynching of his confessed kidnappers.

"This," The Times said, "is the latest and most horrifying manifestation of the growing tendency to sacrifice all decency to sensationalism in presenting news on the screen."

The picture, now being shown in London, closes with a flash of one of the lynched kidnappers hanging from a tree, surrounded by a howling mob.

Newreels are not under jurisdiction of the British board of film censors.

Edmonton, Alberta.—Expressing its approval by resolution that Canadian delegates to the league of nations assembly went on record as being opposed to the private manufacture of armaments for profit, the fourth annual peace conference, in Edmonton, urged the government at Ottawa to continue its efforts in this direction.

Market For Liquors

United States To Seek Exchange Of Commodities Abroad

Washington.—The United States will give Canada and other countries a market for their liquors in exchange for a place to sell surplus farm and industrial products.

Such reciprocal trade agreements are now in process of negotiation with several countries.

Government officials made this known at a hearing on a code for importers that would give the federal alcohol control administration authority to limit the volume and origin of wine and spirits imports on a quota basis.

Hastening the administration's plan to be in complete control of the liquor situation December 5—the repeal date—President Roosevelt at Warm Springs named the five members of the federal alcohol control administration that will supervise the industry until congress can enact permanent legislation.

Disclosure of the government's intention to bargain with foreign liquor exporting countries to lower their trade barriers to United States products was made by Mordecai Ezekiel, economic adviser to Secretary for Agriculture Henry Wallace, in testifying at the importers' code hearing.

Although he declined to say with what countries the government was discussing the proposition, Ezekiel said France, Germany and Italy were the largest wine exporting nations and that these had imposed more restrictions against United States farm products than most countries.

Investigate Lynching

Governor Of Missouri Says There Was No Investigation

St. Joseph, Mo.—At the direction of Governor Guy B. Park, who declared there was "no investigation" for the mob's action, a state investigation was begun here in an attempt to fix a responsibility for the lynching of Lloyd Warner, 19-year-old negro accused of assaulting a young white woman.

William Sawler, assistant attorney general, was sent here from Jefferson City to conduct the inquiry.

"If the responsibility for the lynching can be fixed," said attorney-general Roy McKittrick, "this office will assist and aid in the prosecution."

Governor Park, who ordered out a National Guard tank company in a vain attempt to save the negro from the mob of 8,000 which stormed the county jail and forced Sheriff Otto Thelsen to surrender Warner, said in a statement Wednesday:

"Mob violence, whether in punishment of crime or in attempt to obtain alleged civil rights, is always wrong and destructive of good government. To condone such an offence is to encourage lawlessness, deny the efficiency of the courts and the power of constituted authority."

Ready For Arms Talk

France Willing To Negotiate With Hitler Through Ambassadors

Paris, France.—France is ready for arms talks directly with Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany through ambassadors, foreign office officials indicated, but all decisions, they think, must be made in consultation with others of the war-time allies.

Premier Mussolini's pressure to utilize the four-power peace pact signed by France, Germany, Italy and Great Britain, and the British disposition to mediate, it was said, tend toward direct negotiations because France is anxious to avoid little group meetings where she would be urged to sign on the dotted line.

Settlement Plan

British Farmers May Be Established In Edmonton Area

Edmonton, Alberta.—Two or three group settlements of British farmers may be established in Edmonton district at no cost to the city, provincial or federal governments, according to Brig.-Gen. M. L. Hornby, of Lethbridge, who is a visitor in the city. He is interviewing various authorities in regard to proposals for assisted British settlement.

The general said that no locations in Alberta had been selected as yet, although two locations had been approved in Manitoba and four in Saskatchewan.

Wheat Shipped To Churchill

Prince Albert, Sask.—Two million four hundred bushels of wheat have been drawn from this division of the Canadian National Railways and now are in storage in the Churchill elevator. The grain was supplied by the Saskatchewan wheat pool and will be shipped out by the Hudson Bay route next summer.

Rescue Plane Passengers

Air Hostess Shows Heroism When Plane Forced Down

Windsor, Ont.—Heroism of Miss Kathleen Smith, Chicago, air hostess, helped the rescue of nine passengers and two pilots of a Detroit-bound American Airways plane which crashed through the ice on Lake St. Clair after being forced down by engine trouble. Standing in water up to her neck, Miss Smith assisted the passengers to climb onto the wings of the plane, where they remained until rescuers arrived.

Passengers were loud in their praise of Miss Smith, who had been with the company only six weeks, and Pilot Smith for the careful way in which he "pancaked" his machine in landing.

Ice retarded rescuers who hastened to the scene. It was necessary to break a channel to the stranded plane and for about 20 minutes the passengers and crew watched the battle with the ice until the boats reached the side of the plane. Thoroughly chilled and most of them drenched, the 12 were rushed to a cottage near the river side and given attention. No one was hurt in any way.

Trade Is Doubled

South Africa's Special Agreement With B.C. Brings Results

Vancouver, B.C.—British Columbia trade with South Africa has almost doubled since the special trade agreement went into effect June 30 of this year, and most of the business has flowed through the port of Vancouver, according to a report just issued by the Vancouver board of harbor commissioners. In July, August and September, the values of the export this year was $2,066,000 as against $1,079,000 in the corresponding period of 1931.

COMMITTEE TO URGE FEDERAL MARKETING PLAN

Toronto, Ont.—Representing the agricultural interests of the Dominion, a committee was appointed by the Dominion-wide marketing conference to press for federal marketing legislation after the conference had passed a resolution calling for representations to the federal minister of agriculture.

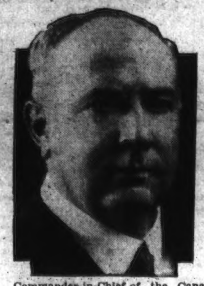

The conference closed with the passing of the resolution.

The committee includes: A. Amos, president of the United Farmers' Co-Operative Company, Limited, with R. H. Milliken, K.C., and H. B. Cowan, Peterborough, as chairman, secretary and assistant secretary respectively.

Western members are: W. A. Landreth, Winnipeg; A. H. Mercer, Vancouver; P. Roblin, Saskatoon.

The resolution urges the minister of agriculture to "forthwith cause to be prepared a farm products marketing measure which, insofar as federal legislative authority extends, will enable the producers of agricultural products in any part of Canada to take advantage of legislation that may be federal or provincial, embodying the principles of the British Agricultural Marketing Act and that such federal legislation, before enactment, shall be submitted to the committee appointed by this conference to promote the enactment of such legislation."

Stock Awards

Should Be Awarded On Basis Of Real Value

Toronto, Ont.—Unless prizes on the basis of real value are given, the purpose of agricultural exhibitions and the assistance given them by the federal government fail, said Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, in addressing a luncheon of exhibitors at the Royal Winter Fair here.

"For example, if two men sit up with a horse from midnight until the time he enters the ring, making one bad hock look like the other good one, and the horse wins, it isn't the horse that wins, it is the two men who sat up with him," remarked the minister.

Mr. Weir said exhibitions should stress in their prize lists the importance of breeding qualities. Unless the get of a sire or dam showed some of the characteristics that made the sire or dam a prize winner, the awards were not made on a true standard basis, he said.

The federal minister addressed a distinguished gathering that included Hon. W. C. Buckle, Saskatchewan Minister of Agriculture, and Hon. George Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture for Alberta.

Fire At Indian School

Laundry And Hospital Of Alberta Institution Were Destroyed

Grouard, Alberta.—Fire, which broke out in a laundry room, destroyed the laundry, hospital and two adjoining classrooms at the St. Bernard Indian Settlement, a Roman Catholic Institution near here.

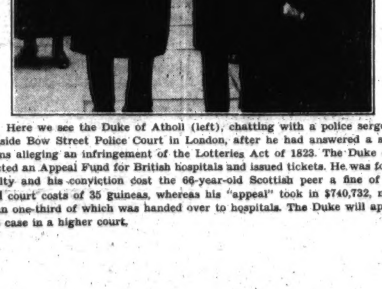

School dormitories and the bishop's palace were saved by valiant work on the part of boys and girls and residents of the settlement, according to word reaching here. There was no loss of life.

Rt. Rev. Bishop Guy, in whose diocese the fire occurred, is receiving treatment at St. Boniface, Man.

Limit On Dumping Duty

Ottawa, Ont.—An order was issued by the Department of National Revenue late Wednesday that Canada would not impose a dumping duty to offset depreciated currencies of foreign countries unless the foreign currency was at a discount of over five per cent. in relation to the Canadian dollar. This will have a far-reaching effect in connection with importations from the United States.

DUKE OF ATHOLL CONVICTED OF BREAKING LAW

Here we see the Duke of Atholl (left), chatting with a police sergeant outside Bow Street Police Court in London, after he had answered a summons alleging an infringement of the Lotteries Act of 1823. The Duke conducted an Appeal Fund for British hospitals and issued tickets. He was found guilty and his conviction cost the 66-year-old Scottish peer a fine of £25 and court costs of 35 guineas, whereas his "appeal" took in $740,732, more than one-third of which was handed over to hospitals. The Duke will appeal the case in a higher court.

Christmas Broadcast

Bells From Church Of The Nativity At Bethlehem To Be Heard

Ottawa, Ont.—The Canadian radio broadcasting commission arranged to co-operate with the British broadcasting corporation in its plans for an empire Christmas broadcast program. The program will include messages from Ottawa to other parts of the empire.

Under the revised plans of the British broadcasting corporation, one part of the empire broadcast will take place December 24. This will be a broadcast from Bethlehem of the bells of the Church of the Nativity. It will come through at 3 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, in Canada.

On Christmas Day the broadcast will start at 9 a.m. (E.S.T.), in Canada. The first 45 minutes will be largely taken up with a description of the celebration of Christmastide in various parts of the old land. The following 15 minutes, until 10 a.m. (E.S.T.), will be occupied by messages of greeting from various parts of the empire.

Finally, from 10 to 10:05 a.m., there will be a message from Sandringham by His Majesty, the King.

The Canadian radio commission has arranged to bring the program to Canada by trans-Atlantic cable and will distribute it over its network wires to broadcasting stations in all parts of the country.

Alberta Pool Earnings

Figures Show Net Amount Of $179,054.64 For Year Ending July 15

Calgary, Alberta.—Operations of the Alberta Wheat Pool for the business year ending July 15 showed earnings of $997,948.88, it was reported to the annual meeting by R. D. Purdy, general manager.

Net earnings were $179,054.64, after providing $536,000.04 for depreciation and payment of $282,430 interest to the Alberta Government in connection with the 1929 overpayment.

Total handlings of the pool during the year were 488,390,660 bushels, showing an average of 105,233 bushels per elevator. In 1932 the amount handled by pool elevators was 91,411 bushels per elevator.

PASSING OF GENERAL SIR ARTHUR CURRIE

Montreal, Quebec.—Sir Arthur Currie, commander-in-chief of the Canadian corps in France, died here Nov. 30. He was 57 years old. Since 1920 he had been principal and vice-chancellor of McGill University. Death occurred at 2:50 a.m.

Sir Arthur was taken to hospital Nov. 7 suffering from blockage of a blood vessel in the mid-brain.

The famous soldier made an impressive last fight. Pneumonia developed Sunday to complicate his condition, however, and hope had to be abandoned.

Sir Arthur's distinction was chiefly due to his success as a soldier and a commander, but capacity for organization led to his reputation being further enhanced after he became head of McGill.

Arthur William Currie was born in Napperton, Middlesex County, Ont., Dec. 5, 1875. He went to the Pacific coast in 1894 and soon took an interest in military affairs in Victoria. He went overseas with the rank of brigadier-general as commander of the 2nd Canadian infantry brigade. In September, 1915, he was appointed commander of the 1st Canadian division, which post he held until he became commander-in-chief of the Canadian corps.

Besides Lady Currie, Sir Arthur is survived by one son, Garner Ormsby Currie, a student at McGill, and one daughter, Mrs. A. T. Galt Durnford, wife of a well known architect here. Lady Currie was Lucy Sophia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Caaworth Chaworth-Musters, Nottingham, England.

In 1917, after the battle of Vimy, Sir Arthur became commander-in-chief and received his title K.C.M.G. He had received the first order of knighthood, Commander of the Bath, in 1915 following the second battle of Ypres.

The tragic victory of Passchendaele was won in November, 1917, and he organized the preparations for the 1918 offensive. On August 8, 1918, Sir Arthur led the Canadian corps—developed to a high state of efficiency—at the battle of Amiens and the victorious advance. The battle of the Canal du Nord, perhaps the most brilliant feat of arms in the war, was planned and carried out by the Canadian commander.

SAYS BRITAIN MUST BUILD UP HER AIR FORCE

London, Eng.—Emphasis to Britain's policy that the principal nations of the world should seek parity of air power was given in the House of Lords by the Marquess of Londonderry, secretary for air. It was coupled with the threat that if other nations are unwilling to reduce their air arms to the level of Britain's this nation will have "no option but to begin to build upwards."

The House of Lords was presented with figures purporting to show Britain has lost her position of first ranking air power and has fallen to fifth place. With this was coupled the assertion that the British air force is considered a defensive arm.

The marquess' remarks, considered an expression of government policy, caused one of the most extraordinary scenes ever witnessed in the House of Commons when members found themselves unable to gain any information on it from government leaders in that chamber.

To the lords the marquess said: "The approval for an increase in American air strength and the embarkation of an enlarged program by the Japanese and Russians are causing great concern. He expressed the hope the powers would agree on figures that would bring parity at the lowest possible figure.

A sharp issue arose in the House of Commons, when Morgan Jones, Laborite, walked over from the House of Lords where he had been listening to Lord Londonderry and attempted to question the government on that peer's statement.

For hours previously the House had been debating a private member's motion—a motion which affords opportunity for debate but does not bind the government—urging inadequacy of the present air defence.

Imperial Co-Operation

Strong Policy Is Necessary To Overcome Difficulties

London, Eng.—"We must recognize that for the time being world co-operation is impossible, and concentrate upon devising ways whereby we of the British Empire can help ourselves to overcome immediate difficulties and get our people back into employment," declared Stanley Bruce, Australian high commissioner to Britain, in a speech before the Empire Industries Association.

Failure of world conferences and of world co-operation made a driving force embracing the whole Empire imperative, said the former Australian prime minister. He suggested creation of a small group of the best men available, to devote all their time to formulation of a strong resolute policy of imperial co-operation.

Obstacles to British trade have arisen in the form of prohibitions, quotas, and tariffs, Mr. Bruce went on, and the development of Japan, with her different standards of living had created a new problem. The paramount necessity at present was a strong policy of imperial co-operation, in his opinion. He suggested such a group as he mentioned might be presided over by a British cabinet minister, if that were deemed desirable.

Messages Of Condolence

King And Queen Send Message To Lady Currie

Montreal, Que.—Lady Currie received two messages from His Excellency the Governor-General, one on behalf of King George and the other a personal one from Lord Bessborough, expressing condolence in the death of Sir Arthur Currie.

Lord Bessborough sent the following message to Lady Currie on behalf of King George:

"I am commanded by His Majesty the King to convey to yourself and the members of your family the heartfelt sympathy of His Majesty and of Her Majesty the Queen."

The Governor-General's personal message follows:

"I have learned with deep regret of the death of your most distinguished husband. His passing is a loss, not only to the university and the city which he claimed him but to all Canadians, especially those who had served under him as soldiers."

This Claim Is Different

Toronto, Ont.—R. H. Neil appeared before the pensions commission here and asked for a pension increase for loss of his hair during the war. He claimed fever contracted in the trenches removed his hair. Neil maintained he should be recompensed for the cost of five wigs.

E. H. L. THOMAS, Editor and Publisher

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1933

An article appeared a few days ago in one of the daily papers, from which we quote the following extracts, the said article is from the pen of J. S. Cowper:-

A few weeks ago in referring to the traffic in narcotic drugs on this continent I expressed the opinion that official Japan turns a blind eye toward narcotics for export to the north American continent, not only for the money made by selling narcotics for export, but for the degenerating effect they have on the American people. Religion, which is an adjunct of the military power in all the civilized nations, convinces the Japanese that the destiny of his race is to rule over all the world. Some of the Japanese-language papers in California have been quite free in picturing the time when the Yamato race will rise in its might and sweep the present white occupants of the Pacific slope into the sea. A generation or two of narcotic addiction would be an excellent preparation from the Japenese point of view.

The difference between Oriental and Occidental conceptions is seen in sport.

Our codes seem foolish to them as theirs are unsporting to us. Supplying a potential adversary with narcotics wouldn't be wicked to them; it might be highly praiseworthy.

Mr. Shen Hsueh-Chuan, Chinese investigator of the narcotic drug traffic for the American owned "China Weekly Review," has been spending some months in Manchukuo. As a consequence he has written an article for the China Weekly Review containing some grave charges.

He says:

1. That Japan aims deliberately at the demoralization and devitalization of the Chinese population of Manchukuo through opium and heroin.

2. That any Chinese carrying the badge of an opium user issued by the Japanese authorities has the equivalent of a free passport.

3. That Japan having learned the effectiveness of the drug weapon on the populace of Formosa is using the same tactics to subdue Manchukuo.

Mr. Shen says that eighty per cent of the Japanese nationals living in Southern Manchuria are directly or indirectly connected with the drug business. He claims there are no fewer than 1000 opium dens, principally operated by Japanese and Koreans, in the city of Mukden alone. In Hsinching, the capital of Manchukuo, he says there are at least three thousand opium and heroin dens.

Says Mr. Shen in telling how the Japanese encourage the Chinese residents to smoke opium.

"Addicts are honored as respectable gentlemen, while non-addicts are treated with scorn. To every opium or heroin addict, the Japanese issue a smoking badge. One who possesses such is accorded privileges by Japanese soldiers and is exempt from examination. Those without badges must be subject to rigid examination by Japanese troops or police."

"By purquing and enforcing this narcotic policy, the Japanese are not only realizing big revenue, but are systematically demoralizing the Chinese people with the ultimate object of extinguishing the Chinese race in Manchuria.

Chinese farmers, says Mr. Shen, are forced by the Japanese to grow opium poppies. The crop is unprofitable to the farmer. When he goes bankrupt, a Japanese or Korean farmer is encouraged to buy the place.

As we peruse the above and consider just what lies behind all this, there comes to us a feeling of horror. How human beings can for mere financial gain exploit their brother man destroying his body, mind and soul in a carefully planned, systematic way with apparently no feeling of repugnance seems impossible to our British minds. But let us pause a moment. We call ourselves a Christian nation, we have our sectarian difference but nevertheless we are won't to swell up with pride and say, "No, inhuman practices" and sit back again at ease feeling that we have done our part by rendering such a humanitarian verdict, and that we are so much more enlightened and moral in our treatment of our fellowmen.

BUT ARE WE? We say, "All's fair in love and war! Perhaps the Japanese have also intepreted this saying. In England Munition factories are busy turning out munition of war, one factory boasting that they supply fourteen different countries. These are privately owned concerns and as any mercantile manufacturer claims the right "to work up trade" for his particular manufacture, by advertising, propaganda, and soliciting orders after creating the desire for his article, so munition makers sell first to one nation and then send word to the other nations that the first is secretly arming, having recently placed large orders, etc.

There can be no permanent peace between nations until they league together to make the manufacture of munitions of war a government business, no such manufacture of munitions to be carried on as a private enterprize for private gain. If this was done the greatest incentive to war would have been eliminated, Recall Col. Stephenson and his efforts to frustrate agreement on reduction of navies not so long ago. We may shudder at the "splinter" in the eye of the yellow man and "behold not the beam in our own eye."

To quote further from Mr. Cowper:-

The methods adopted by the Japanese to ju jitsu the Manchurians out of Manchukuo have more than a mere reading interest to the people of western Canada. The Rocky Mountains have served as a barrier to keep the Japanese from overflowing into the prairies, but in a few years when they outnumber the white population of British Columbia they will push their settlements east of the Rockies.

People with an aptitude for figures can work out the date of the invasion. Here are some facts to work on. In 1912 one birth out of each 242 in British Columbia was that of a Japanese child. Last year one birth in eight was that of a Japanese. How long will it be before we have a Manchukuo on this side of the Pacific?

Perhaps this may seem to strike closer home. The menace aimed in our own direction may seem more real. Yet so many of us have such a small perspective, we see only that which immediately confronts us and if it does not threaten our own present comfort it is little concern of ours. We take no thought of what Christ said almost two thousand years ago; "All ye are brethren" or we say That was the Jews of that time, not for us." Only and international relations can come any lasting peace by realizing the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of man and putting this spirit into our business, politics or that ideal "The Confederation of the World" so well portrayed by Tennyson.

Controlled Finance

FROM A PAPER GIVEN BY B. C. LEES AT A MEETING OF THE EDGERTON ECONOMIC STUDY GROUP

When one asks what was the cause of the depression it reminds me of the saying, who won the war. If the war was fought to make the world safe for democracy, we are at the crisis now, not sixteen years ago.

In order to find a remedy for anything we must analize the cause, I just wish to go over the cause briefly.

The war taught all nations how to speed up production, and as long as goods could be destroyed there was no problem of distribution. War also bred the fear of famine, causing all governments to become national in viewpoint, looking to their own industries and feeding them on tariffs and subsidies regardless of requirements, trying to trade their products with other countries for the one commodity, GOLD, and as there was not sufficient gold in the world to buy goods, nations tried to corner same, making it impossible to do and, trading, bringing about curtailment of credit, closing down of industry, turning loose employes, causing unemployment, relief, heavy taxation put on the consumption of goods, causing less to be consumed; all leading to freezing out the small capitalists or merging them into combines and trusts bringing about watered stock, and to the position where they can be more easily controlled by capital, the large industrialists being given seats on the bankers dictorate, so they will acquire a banking mind, all leading to the greatest racket the world has ever known. The CREDIT RACKET.

It has completely left the hands of the industrialists, and we must not forget in the process millions went by the board, for every gain someone somewhere took an equal loss, for capital investment in industry it is estimated the average interests return is only two per cent one could not complain about that were it not for the tremendous waste of overlapping of industry through lack of a planned system, also the ones who received the profits of industry were not compelled to take care of their own employers, but simply turned loose for governments to take care of.

The greatest hunger of industry to my mind was allowing the dollar to be treated as a piece of elastic to be stretched at will, when at the same time they demanded laws to put on the statutes making it a crime to give short weight or measure. The bushel of wheat never varies but the price always.

What we buy today is becoming out of date to morrow, and is on its way to decay, most of ourdebt is represented in obsolescence, Obsolescence in War, Obsolescence in Plant, Obsolescence in Railway, Obsolescence in Governments, all of these obsolescences have been capitalized in the form of Interest Bearing Bonds.

I would like to give you an illustration by using this town to express my point. Mr. Industry calls on the council to see if he can get a free site to build a factory which will convert straw into fuel and other by products, employing one hundred men. The council wishing to build up Edgerton, and knowing little of the economic problem of Industry grabs at the idea. The factory is built and work commences, Edgerton is booming which brings in other merchants to sell goods to the employees of the straw factory, reducing the profits of the present merchants by a system of competition and excess overhead. The workmen build houses going into debt for same, and as long as conditions are good they are prosperous, but the time comes when Mr. Industry decides this factory shall be closed down, so another concern in Wainwright can make a superior article at cheaper cost by using oil in the process, with the consequence Edgerton is left with one hundred men and their families on the doorstep of the taxpayers to take care of. One cannot complain of Mr. Industry doing Edgerton a dirty trick, he like ourselves is a part of the capital system under which we exist, survival of the fittest. He made a profit out of his hundred men and paid for his plant but all profit is someones loss, in this case it is asking the ratepayers to bear the loss, the merchants are doing less business with higher taxation, causing some to go out of business, all of which helps to balance the ledger of profit and loss.

Under a planned system this would not happen. The expert coming to the conclusion that it would be a good point tobuild this factory would do so but in catering to the workman's requirements would also be planned for economy, the plant would be built by the issuence of new money, the same to be withdrawn by adding to the price of the product sufficient to balance the ledger during the life of the factory's usefulness. With regards to the men their welfare would have been settled before deciding to move the plant to Wainwright, most of them would get positions in the new factory. (Not: read Henry Clay in World's Economic Crisis.

The Key to the remedy will undoubtly be found in the MAL-DISTRIBUTION OF CREDIT, the creation anddestruction of money. If the war taught us anything it certainly taught us he possibilities of credit. Credit and Humanity must be United. Uunder private ownership of credit our financial institutions' objective is, to place as much credit as possible with the least risk, they have to ignore the human element, their desire to lessen risk makes government and large commercial loans attractive, and there is nothing would suit the financiers better than for the government to take over industry, and leave the credit system intact to private monopoly; the have gone a long way in this direction to O.K. credits to commercial firms.

The A. B. C. of credit is as follows. Inflation by the expansion of credit to customers. Deflation to contract credit from customers, causing the customer to bear all the loss of falling prices, the financiers taking the profit of the industrial expansion to be reinvested in interest bearing Bonds, to be paid for by a ing the ledger by less taking care of profit, or in other words making the rich RICHER and the poor POORER.

By this process finance is working against the goose that lays the golden egg, bringing about their own destruction and that sort of civilization in the processs.

The question is will civilization submimt to this slow torture of bringing about neath. I think not, as long as we finn healthy communities looking into causes and remedies such as this ilub represents, then there is hope.

One of the greatest crimes of our financial system is that capital takes first place, lives second. The World's War brought this point to civilization's notice. Governments of the world conscripted lives to protect property and the one who were conscripted, if they escaped with their lives, were asked to pay back for the rest of their days more wealth than they had received from risking their lives.

The Human Element is the most sacred thing in life, and must take first place, the soundest money policy in the world is the one that accepts that doctrine. The way it will be brought about is only secondary to bringing it about, but in order to weld public opinion we must look into how it can be done, and with that in view I wish to give you one idea.

The government to take over the issue of taken money and credit. All government undertakins to be done at cost. As an illustration we will say they want to build the Quebec Bridge costing $10,000,000. The life of the bridge is estimated at fifty years, during this fifty years the people are taxed to brin in $10,000,000, plus the cost of book-keeping, this money is destroyed on coming back to the Treasurury. If a sinking fund is necessary one could not object to that, all it means is we have to pay in say 45 years for what would last us 50 years. I ask ou is that not sounder than the present system of paying for that bridge three times over by the interests route and finding at the end of the fifty years we have no funds to meet it so Re-fund it, asking future generations to pay for a bridge that is absolete.

In dealong with individual credit I believe it will be assential for planned industry, because no individual can go ahead without effecting the whole economic tructure, that being so we are all interested in any credit given for industrial expansion. If this is accepted as essential, the individual wishing credit will go into the bank the same as now, and the manager will fill in his report and forward same to the government experts, and if accepted by them the credit will be given.

Government Bonds (including federal, provincial & municipal becoming due will be paid by the new issue of money to the extent of the price level we wish to set. Note: Sir. W. H. Beveridge says this will not function.)

Obligations of Bonds not yet due will have to be handled with kid gloves, or the large bondholder will throw in a monkey wrench known as Wodows & Orphans.

We cannot pay these undue obligations with new issues of money without upsetting the price level, but we must be willing to pay for our follies with 10% dollars not as at present with 300% dollars thu' the contraction of credit and the fall in commodity prices, unmatured bonds will have to be called in and replaced by non-interest bearing bonds, budgeted by experts as to the amount redeemable from year to year, based on taxpayers ability to pay, they could be accepted for taxes due, or approved industrial expansion, which means that we as taxpayers after fulfilling our own requirements will have to work a little extra each day to produce goods to pay for our past follies.

If we are willing in this crisis to face the issue with an open mind, and not be dogmatic, we need have no fear of solutions not being found. Governments have reached the limit of taxation under stagnent trade, which sooner or later must lead to repudiation. The investor would undoubtedly prefer non-interest bearing bonds along with demands for their services. To repudiation and no chance to serve.

International obligations can only be paid with goods, which includes GOLD and I would recommend we use all our gold stock on hand for cancelling International obligations, gold is at a premium at present, all other commodities are at a discount. Gold will slump when people become educated to a policy of truly sound money. Do not let Canada be holding the empty bag. Leave that to the gold bug countries and King Midas.

Every case of trying to corner the market of a commodity through its scarcity has failed, failed to completely it has brought abundance, gold will follow suit, through an abundance of education.

Finally I wish to say a planned system will take many years to reap the full reward, but it must come, whether it be through a capital system or a social system I am not prepared to say, but the lives of people are just as sacred in Peace as War, and it is just as absurd to go to war without planning, as it is to try and feed, clothe and shelter human beings without a plan.

A Planned System when perfected mean that our desires are fulfilled according to the hours we wish to work.

DOUGLAS SOCIAL CREDIT PROPOSALS

BY H. A. GREEN

Reprinted From
THE LLOYDMINSTER TIMES

The learned economists and those who occupy "the seats of the mighty," appear to gain consolation, and offer it to us, in saying that such things as these, you know, must be, and it will all come right in the end. This is a scientific age. Such things need not be, and there is a cure.

Can goods be sold at less than financial cost, the manufacturer and merchant getting a fair profit, wage and salary earners getting well paid? If this question had been asked twelve years ago, only one man in the world would have answered yes, and been able to explain parts of the world would also answer the technique of how it could be done. Today tens of thousands in all parts of the world would also answer yes, and thousands could explain the way to do it. That one man was Mayor C. H. Douglas, M. I. Mech., Mining, E., etc. who gave us his discovery in several books now known as The Douglas Social Credit Proposals.

During the past century economists have given us a set of dogmas of a purely artificial nature, based upon statistics, and called economic "laws." They have been adding line upon line, precept upon precept; here a little and there a little, but they offer us no relief, no solution for the problems that press so heavily upon all classes.

There are three things to be considered with respect to the Douglas Proposals:

1. Are they good for the community as a whole?
2. Are they practical?
3. Can they be easily put into practice?

The answer to these questions is yes.

We have on one hand producers eager to produce goods and services. On the other hand, a large and increasing body of consumers anxious to receive and consume them. But money—the link between producer and consumer—is lacking, and in addition we have debts public and private, piled up to sums undreamed of a few years ago, and no hope of paying them. Neither politician nor economist hold out the faintest hope. They suggest palliatives that only excite the disease and retard the cure. The so-called trade cycles are caued by banks creating or destroying credit. We are told to work harder and save more; other remedies are lower wages, longer hours, shorter hours, greater wages. The last only increases cost to reduce purchasing power.

The year 1921 in the U.S.A., 185,000 corporations showed a total deficit of loss of four billion, and 170,000 showed net profit of four billion. Profits balanced by losses. It cannot be otherwise. Industry as a whole directly or indirectly cannot possibly recover from the consumer more money than it pays them. The peak year of Australian Banks, profits were five and three-quarter millions equal to nine cents per capita per week. Nine cents per week will not purchase our economic salvation, so confiscation of bank profits will not go far amongst us. The issuing of notes by governments themselves is not a solution. It is only a first step to free us from the supreme power of finance. Australia, during the war period, increased the currency 130 per cent, by note issue. This was called inflation and wholesale prices also rose 130 per cent., and it is estimated that a profit of 17 millions was made from this note issue, which of course, the consumer is paying. While reform in the ambit of finance is needed, mere reform is useless. Inflation is only a plaster on a running sore. The more it is plastered the more it runs. As a temporary help, inflation sometimes is useful.

One hundred years ago Governor Brock financed the building of the Guernsey market house, by the issue of printed bits of paper. Governor Brock did a great thing. He demonstrated that "tickets" serve as efficiently as gold. But students of Social Credit now know that the Guernsey folk paid twice for their market place. Once through increased price of goods, following creation of extra money, causing fear of inflation, and again as a rent charge in price of goods sold by still-holders. To-day nothing but a gift of money to consumers will solve the problem. Money or credit which comes into existence as a debt to be repaid or remain as a source of profit is worthless. Two thousand three hundred years ago, Aristotle stated the problem thus: How to contrive that Plenty, not Poverty, should become permanent. In terms of Douglas, the problem would run thus: How to make purchasing power in the hands of consumers equate with the collective price of consumable goods on sale. Social students claim unreservedly that this problem is solved, and all that needs to be done is to put the credit proposals into practice. Everybody would share in its benefits. No one would be penalized.

It is a fact that there is no problem awaiting solution in production. Given an order, backed by money, industry can produce anything from a toy yacht to a fifty thousand ton liner; from a mile long tunnel to a mile-long bridge. And this, mark you, with a continually decreasing employment of human labor, the producers problem is not to make goods, but to sell goods. Here are a few striking instances of machine production. The Lancashire cotton industry can supply, by working only one full week, the cotton requirements of Great Britain for one year. Two months' work in the boot factories will do the same as regards footwear. One man tending 25 machines, will produce 3,600 socks in a day. A brick-laying machine used in Glasgow will lay 1,500 bricks per hour. A machine that strips currants off the bunh disemploys 40 women. One man with a machine turns out ten thousand tins a day to can the currants. The tube railway in London has an automatic booking clerk that issues tickets and gives exact change. An automatic mechanism producing 73,000 electric light bulbs every 24 hours, disemploys 2,000 hand workers. The Henry Ford tractor factory from the raw material turns out complete tractors in three days, travelling under their own power. The Westminster Bank invested 100,000 pounds in automatic office machines to save human labor and labor costs. Where will the disemployed clerks find work? At St. Louis, where sewerage work was being carried on, 37 machine operators with 37 laborers did the work of 7,000 pick and shovel men in one day. Shorter working hours are no solution for, in this case, to put 7,000 men back to work, each one to do his bit, would only have to work five minutes. Costs must come down, and there is no reason why costs should not come down, but there is a sound reason why workers should not be disemployed and without money when costs do come down. The problem then is to distribute purchasing power in place of wages formerly paid to disemployed workers. That problem Douglas has solved for us.

"Money," says Prof. Walker, "is any medium which has reached such a degree of acceptability that no matter what it is made of, none will refuse it in exchange for his products." Douglas defines it thus: "Money is buying power, an effective demand for goods and service." Conversely, anything that has buying power is money. Practically all money is paper. No matter what the material, it must have one characteristic—confidence. Without that it is worthless. We have in Canada about 2,000 millions in savings banks on deposit; around 350 millions in circulation; about 200 million of this backed with gold, yet bankers, politicians and economists talk of pound money and gold standard; mere book entries created by pen and ink, otherwise pure illusion. The bankers, politicians, economics also the subsidized press tell us that we have "the best banking system in the world, but the do not tell you for whom it is best!

The Right Hon. R. McKenna, Exchancellor of the Exchequer and chairman of the Midland Bank of England, addressed these words to the shareholders of his bank: "I am afraid the ordinary citizen will not like to be told that the banks (can and do) create and destroy money. The amount of money in existence varies only with the action of the banks in increasing and decreasing deposits. Every loan or overdraft creates a deposit and every repayment of a loan or overdraft destroys a deposit."

The late Sir Ed. Holden, an eminent banker, addressing Liverpool business men, said: "I want you to remember that the business of the world is carried on by loans, and loans create credit."

National income is an estimate of the total purchasing power of country, but this is wrong. A large percentage of that income is only one person's income transferred to another and counted twice. For instance suppose Mr. Jenkins gets $1000 a year. That sum is counted as income in the National Income. Now if he pays his housekeeper $500 a year, behold, the National Income now is $1,500. If Mr. Jenkins now, for love, or reasons of economy, marries his housekeeper, again the magic wand is waved and National income is decreased $500.

Douglas says, and the system has never been disproved. "That the wages, salaries and dividends distributed (as embracing practically all money incomes and therefore the sum of consumers purchasing power) over any given period of time, do not and cannot buy the product of that period; and that the whole of production can only be bought by a draft and an increasing draft, on the purchasing power distributed in respect of future production, which purchasing power can only come from future bank loans or overdrafts. Suppose a business man in the community wishes to build a house, and goes to the banker and asks for an overdraft of $1000 to pay the cost. The banker agrees, makes an entry in his ledger. The man is now permitted to draw cheques for the amount of his overdraft. We will now suppose the workmen who build the house get the materials for nothing, and are able to keep themselves while at work on the house. Under these conditions we can imagine the house finished and the builders paid in cheques by the man who was granted the overdraft. Now as a result of the transaction, the currency is increased by $1,000. A little later the banker asks for repayment of overdraft. The business man not having the money on hand, sells the house to the men who built it. These men hand back their cheques to the business man, who repays the banks, who makes another entry in his ledger, and the $1,000 ceases to exist. He destroyed it. No one now has the money, not even the banker, only potentially. That is, he has the power to create another $1,000 if he wishes by granting a further loan. Now Mark this fact! Previous to the granting of that $1,000 overdraft, that money had no record in the bank's books, either as an asset or liability. It meant the creation of somthing and the destruction of something. Take up our illustration again. The men decide to use the house as a factory for making clothes for sale. The cost of the clothes will consist of at least three items: wages, raw material and a charge for wear and tear of factory called depreciation. We will, in this instance consider they get the material for nothing, and place depreciation charge at 10 per cent. We will not let profit or interest, nor rent, enter into our account, and yet the simple vital facts remain, that the wages paid during any period of production cannot possibly buy the clothes produced, because the price includes a 10 per cent depreciation charge which makes cost more than has been distributed in money to consumers: which must make prices 10 per cent greater than purchasing power. In the different processes from the raw material to finished article, cost is counted twice or more, but the people only get the money once. This is the root cause of our economic disease.

Wins Poultry Prizes

Dick Irvin, Famous Hockey Player Is Poultry Fancier.

Dick Irvin, coach of the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey team, knows how to turn out smart poultry as well as smart hockey players. He showed the best Wyandotte cockerel at the Royal Winter Fair and captured sixth and seventh prizes with a hen and a pullet.

This is the second time the well-known sportsman has walked off with honors for chickens at the Royal. He showed for the first time last year, and at that time won third and fourth prizes in Wyandottes. Mr. Irvin hails from Regina, and his win makes the first time this prize has been taken by the west.

There are others in the sports world who chase pucks in the winter and raise chickens, cows and horses in the summer, it was learned. Buzz Boll, of the Maple Leafs, Mr. Irvin said, has a ranch at Regina. The famous Boston Bruin hold-out, Eddie Shore, and the Cook Brothers of the New York Rangers are neighbors, as distances go in the west, of the Irvin ranch.

Mr. Irvin has been raising chickens for 22 years—ever since he demonstrated a prefrence for Regina over his native city, Hamilton.

He also raises racing pigeons and Great Danes.

"I'm coming back to get the Leghorn prize next year," he said.

A new antiseptic with extraordinarily powerful germicidal properties has been announced by Western Reserve University at Cleveland, Ohio. Prison Has Model Dairy

Surroundings Of Reformatory At Bakersfield, California, Are Attractive

Being a rosy-cheeked milkmaid in an Adamless Eden is no great attraction for any woman, ancient or modern, according to the theory of Sheriff Cas Walser, of Kern County, California, himself a typical western sheriff and a first-class cowhand.

"They will get tired of it," commented Sheriff Walser, on a visit to the new State Prison for Women, which includes a model dairy. The sheriff's comment was prompted by the arrival of thirty additional women prisoners from San Quentin. The first contingent of 28 women arrived at the new institution last month. The prison will soon provide sanctuary for 145 women prisoners.

The model reformatory is in a secluded valley fifty miles east of Bakersfield in the mountains.

Each inmate has an attractive room, and each dormitory has a separate kitchen and dining room.

The group of buildings was erected at a cost of $500,000 on an 1,800-acre farm which the women will operate.

The motorists were compelled to shoot it.

Italy's New Postage Stamp

Series To Celebrate Tenth Anniversary Of Fascist Government

To celebrate the tenth anniversary of the Fascist Government of Italy, Signor Mussolini has issued a series of new postage stamps, among them a design which has caused much comment and opposition from the Vatican.

The brown oblong 30 Centesimi stamp sets forth in the centre the open Bible standing on a pedestal, which rests on the wings of an eagle, symbol of inspiration. On the open page of the Book is inscribed the word "Evangelism." On the lower part of the stamp is the word "Credere"—Believe. In the rear of the open Bible is the Cross, not the crucifix. On the left, before the Bible and the Cross, are the flags of Italy and the emblems of the Fascist regime, lowered in salute.

Narrowly Escaped Tax

Pitt Once Had Idea To Make Umbrellas Add To Revenue

Umbrellas have the distinction of being one of the few articles in common use which have never been taxed, but once at least they had a narrow escape, says the Manchester Guardian. When Pitt was looking round for additional sources of revenue to finance the war with France he wrote to a friend in Somersthire inviting suggestions. Back came the reply: Tax umbrellas, and make all the bishops order the prayer for rain to be read in all the churches till the end of the war." Perhaps Pitt doubted the compliance of the bishops, for the suggestion was not adopted.

PAUL IN CAESAREA

Golden Text: "Herein I also exercise myself to have a conscience void of offense toward God and men always."—Acts 24:16.

Lesson: Acts, Chapters 21, 26.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 2:1-8.

Explanations and Comments

Accused By Tertullus, 24:1-9.—Lysias, the Chief Captain, had charged Paul's accusers to appear against him before Felix. Within five days the high priest Ananias with a deputation from the Sanhedrin arrived in Caesarea. Paul was summoned for trial. Tertullus, the advocate whom the Jews had engaged, presented their case against him. After fulsome words of flattery for Felix, even expressing gratitude for his reforms, Tertullus accused "this pestilential fellow" of three things: inciting disturbance amongst the Jews throughout the Roman Empire—an offense against the Roman law; being the leader of the sect of the Nazarenes—an offense against the law of Moses; and defiling the temple—an offense against both the law of Moses and the Roman law, since the latter protected the Jews in their worship. When Tertullus concluded his speech, the deputation of Jews emphatically endorsed all that he said.

Paul's Defense, 24:10-21.—When Felix made a gesture signifying that Paul should make his defense, Paul with quaint dignity answered the charges that had been brought against him. He began in a courteous way, saying that he spoke with great confidence because Felix had judged his nation for some time and was well acquainted with the state of affairs. Contrast his courteous beginning with the fulsome flattery of the opening words of Tertullus.

Then Paul denied that he was a disturber of the public peace (the first charge made, verse 5); it had been but twelve days since he came to Jerusalem for the opposite purpose of worshipping there; investigation could be made and no proof of his enemies' charge would be found.

That he belonged to the so-called sect of the Nazarenes Paul acknowledged, but he was not an apostate from the Jewish religion (the second charge, verse 5), for he served the same God and believed the law and the propaets. "The law and the prophets" stand for the Old Testament writings. Christianity, the Way, was not a new religion in Paul's mind, but a development of Judaism. "To believe the Bible is something more than to believe its letter and sometimes something different. It is to believe what God intended by the letter. If the Scriptures taught circumcision and other ceremonies, Paul knew their intent and their limitations. He knew and defined the object of the law (Galatians 3:24). He saw no antithesis between his teaching and that of Moses (Romans 3:31; Galatians 3:21)."—James M. Stifler.

He believed in the resurrection of the just and the unjust, as did the Jews before him. Paul claimed. Because of this belief, Paul strove to have a clear conscience toward God and toward men.

"I sat alone with my conscience
In the place where time had ceased.
We discussed of my former living
In the land where the years increased,
And I felt that I should have to answer
The question it put to me.
And to face those questions and answers
In that dim eternity."

Officials Strong For Newspaper Advertising

Isle Of Man Publicity Board Pleased With Results

Newspaper advertising has so well paid the Isle of Man this year that the official publicity board is asking the Manx Government for an additional sum of $7,500 for advertising next season to supplement the customary grant of $35,000 which legislature annually makes for this purpose.

Publicity board officials report they have never previously received so many applications for guides to the island in one year.

W. A. Clague, the secretary, said the efficiency of a judicious newspaper advertising campaign in attracting visitors had long been proved by his board. It was not just a matter of chance—the results could be counted upon.

A Partner For Discussion

Nations Cannot Dictate To Germany Says Sir John Simon

Sir John Simon, secretary for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons that Britain is resolved to do everything possible to make Germany, which withdrew from the disarmament conference at Geneva last month, a partner again in arms discussions.

Sir John said there could have been no procedure more calculated to "drive the iron into Germany's soul" than to have told her that withdrawal from the conference made no difference—that the convention would be completed and then she be asked to sign on the dotted lines.

"Germany," said Sir John, "is not a target for dictation; she is a partner for discussion."

Het sai dthe government already has taken steps to play its full part in endeavoring to promote diplomatic consultations.

The foreign secretary told the legislators:

"We have already made it plain to the French Government—unhappily that government fell last night, but I don't believe in this respect that the French policy will change—that if she saw her way to enter into closer communications with Berlin, they would have our complete good will in doing so. . . .

The British Government, Sir John said, had communicated to Chancellor Hitler of Germany "that the whole of our influence would be used for the purpose of trying to bring about a spirit of negotiation and co-operative action instead of keeping Germany at a distance."

"We also," said Sir John, "have communicated to Italy how well satisfied we were to learn she agrees with us in keeping the conference in being, and how satisfied we were that the present procedure, which Italy has been urging on us, was the correct procedure."

Souvenir Of The War

Only Thing One Englishman Had Was Leave Certificate

As the result of a chance encounter in Charing Cross post office a week or two ago, I dined the other night with an old comrade of the war.

This gentleman, though he served as a private in the ranks of the same battalion as myself, was then, as he still is, a man of considerable wealth. He has a fine house in Mayfair, a very pleasant country place too, several cars, and a big staff of domestic servants, including a smart ex-service chauffeur. We had not met since going over the top together in 1918, on an occasion that landed both of us on a stretcher. After dinner the talk was naturally of old army days.

I asked my friend whether he had many souvenirs, in addition to some fifteen-year-old scars, of the Great Adventure. "Only that," he said, pointing with his cigar at a small framed document on his smoke-room wall. It was a leave certificate, duly signed by an army M.O., vouching that my host was "free from vermin and scabies."—London Correspondent Ottawa Journal.

Among The Missing

A little boy surprised his parents by refusing to be scared into being good.

"It's no good telling me the angels will write down in their books if I'm naughty," he said. "I might as well tell you they think up in heaven that I'm dead."

"But why should they think that?"

"Because I haven't said my prayers for two weeks."

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful art student, and Peter Anson, a struggling sculptor, fall in love and marry secretly, deciding to live apart until the time Peter can establish himself. Camilla, the adopted daughter of wealthy parents, is not to inherit money when she comes of age. She is preparing herself for life with a course in commercial art, hoping to get a job to enable her to support herself. She has been making the rounds of the agencies. Peter, working in his studio on an idea for a figure with which he hopes to win a scholarship to study abroad, receives a call from a beautiful model, Sylvia Todd, who offers to work for almost nothing if he will employ her. He cannot afford a model, but promises to think it over.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XX.

When Sylvia Todd had gone, Peter paced the floor in agitation. Her visit had resurrected again that fondest dream of his life—to study abroad with Despone and work at the Trocadero. Of course, entering the exhibit did not guarantee the opportunity, but he believed that he stood the chance with anyone. It was, at least, a chance.

But with his marriage to Camilla, he had put that hope aside resolutely. Should he win the scholarship, it would mean that he must take Camilla with him and support her, or leave her behind. He could not do the former and he would not do the latter. So he had convinced himself that there was little chance of his winning, and decided to devote his time to more remunerative pursuits.

Whether or not Camilla wanted him to feel responsible for her, he did, and he must see to it that he could take care of her soon. Furthermore, he had resolved that if art for art's sake did not begin to pay dividends soon, he would commercialize it.

But Sylvia Todd — beautiful girl— had stirred again that greatest ambition which he would have sacrificed to nothing in the world except his love for Camilla. He was restless all day, could not work in the studio. He went to the park after his class and wandered about aimlessly, thinking, debating what he should do. Perhaps if he entered the exhibit and lost, it would be the best thing for him, after all. He would have the satisfaction of knowing that he could not have gone abroad, anyway. At least, he would be more settled and content.

Strangely enough, when he saw Camilla that same evening, it was she who introduced the subject that weighed most heavily upon his mind.

"By the way, Peter, have you decided anything about your entry for the exhibit?" They had strolled to the park, where it was slightly cooler. The day had been oppressively warm and the studio stifling.

He started, as if she had struck him, for he was still revolving the matter in his mind. "Funny you should ask that, when I've just been thinking about it all day."

"Why shouldn't you be thinking about it?" she asked, surprised.

"Because I had stopped thinking about it," quietly.

Camilla faced him. "Stopped thinking about it?" Why, Peter Anson! Since when?"

He avoided her eyes. "Well, I thought I hadn't much show of winning and—"

"No one has better," she contradicted him.

"There will be more entrants than usual this year. The closer money is, the more there are who try for scholarships."

"And what if they do? Even if you should not win, you could lose nothing."

"And if I should win—" he hesitated.

A moment of poignant silence and then Camilla understood. "Is that what has troubled you? Oh, Peter, darling, why didn't you tell me?" she cried with consternation.

"But you know, dear, that you are much more important to me than the National scholarship. Winning it would mean that I go to Paris for a year—and I couldn't take you with me."

"Why, Peter you "have" to try for it. And if you win—we'll manage somehow," bravely. "Oh, I never should have married you, Peter. Already, I am ruining your life."

"Please, Camilla, don't say that. Why, if you want me to try, I shall. But that doesn't mean I'll win, you know."

"And if you don't your work will attract attention, perhaps sell for a good price. Peter, what do sculptors get for their work? I haven't the slightest idea."

"And you married a sculptor?" he asked, amazed.

"I married the man I love."

"You darling!" he drew her close into his embrace and rested his lips on the top of her fragrant hair, reverently.

"But you didn't answer my question," she insisted from the curve of his shoulder.

He laughed. "Well, the rewards of sculptors vary about as much as those of any profession of the arts. Much depends upon the needs and resources of the patron, the popularity of the artist and the critics. One jazz band can command thirty thousand a week while another is glad to accept one thousand. Their merits may or may not compare. It depends upon other conditions. Chester Dane did a piece of work last year that sold to the Wistar Galleries for forty thousand dollars. It was marvelous, of course, and I don't presume to be a Chester Dane—"

"You can be a Peter Anson and that is better," she declared quickly. "Oh, Peter, you will be famous. Nothing can stop you."

Holding her in his arms, her words were so convincing that his hopes leaped to new heights and he was again sure of himself.

"Nothing shall," he vowed.

"Have you planned what you will do?"

"I had several ideas before I tried to stop thinking about it. What really got me going again was a model who came in this morning and wanted work. She said she heard I was entering the exhibit and needed one."

"You will, won't you?"

"Of course. But I don't see how I can afford—"

"You will have to manage somehow, Peter. I'll help you. I'm sure I shall find some work soon, and that will help both of us."

"Not much, little lady. Aren't you refusing to let me take care of you? I'll do the same."

"But that's different," she objected. "That would not be taking care of you—it would be an investment in your future."

"The same circumstances by any other name would make me just as dependent. No—I'll work it out some way, as I should have done without you. Wasn't that our plan and agreement?"

"All right," agreed Camilla. "And the model—will she do?"

"Couldn't be better," he replied. "Would you believe it, dear, the poor kid was hungry and had walked all the way from seventy-fifth street?"

"And you turned her away?"

Say—what do you think I am—a Scrooge?" he laughed. "No, I gave her a dollar for some dinner and told her I'd let her know tomorrow if I could use her."

"A good start,' she chided him. "You were pretty sure you would need her."

"No, I never would have decided if you had not urged me. I'm sorry I didn't talk it over with you before."

"Please always talk over everything with me, Peter, won't you? Isn't your interest mine, too?"

"Of course, forgive me, dearest. But I thought I was protecting you in this."

"Don't you suppose I should have been very much grieved if I had discovered too late that I had kept you out of the exhibit?"

"I see your side of it now, yes. I'm sorry."

"There are always two sides to anything which concerns you and me, Peter. Remember that, won't you?" she pleaded anxiously.

"Always," he pledged, with a firm, hard kiss.

Presently, he said, "Now help me decide about the subject. Of course, a fountain idea is always good stuff. I don't dare to plan for more than one figure because I couldn't afford several models—"

"But you must not sacrifice success to a meager expense like that," Camilla objected vehemently. All her life, she had been accustomed to extravagance and luxury of the sort in which the Hoyts indulged, and the realization of what a little money could mean to an ambitious youth, appalled her. She rebelled at the ignominy of it.

"I don't think that will be necessary," he reassured her. "I had thought of making a full figure standing, wearing a draped tunic-madonna-like, pouring water from an urn into the upstretched hands of a child, with a smaller child kneeling below and catching the water again in its cupped hands, gleefully. Woman pouring out her life to youth."

"That would be beautiful," she exclaimed softly.

"But nudes always are favored," Peter continued. "Of course, they are more difficult, and should be. For such a figure I had an idea of youth symbolized as drinking eagerly of life—a girl poised on tiptoe and her hands holding to her lips a graceful chalice or a fluted shell—"

"That is lovely, too; perhaps better than the other. You must decide. You do have marvelous ideas, darling."

"Have you something different to suggest dear?"

"I'm sure I couldn't improve on your ideas, if I thought about it for weeks. And I think this effort should be your own very own idea. I'd rather not interfere, but I'll do anything I can to help you if you will only tell me what it is."

"Just be your own dear self," he told her, with a new note of winged hope in his voice.

Farm Fire Insurance

Five-Year Average Shows Companies' Losses $1.19 For Every Dollar Premium

In 1931 insurance on farm properties cost Canadian fire insurance companies $1.33 for every dollar paid in premiums. That was a high year. Over a five-year period from 1927 the average losses paid on farm properties amounted to $1.19 for every dollar paid in premiums. These were not the worst risks—tanneries, woollen mills, boot and shoe factories had decidedly higher losses—but they were in the unprofitable class by a big margin.

Prove Their Hardiness

Fungus Spores Survive Cold Eleven Miles In Air

First scientific results of Lieut. Commander T. G. W. Settle's stratosphere flight made public showed that life in the form of fungus spores or molds can survive 11 miles above earth where humans would die if unprotected.

Spores of seven kinds of fungi, or tiny plants, which Commander Settle carried to the stratosphere on the outside of his balloon "Gondolo," lived through temperatures far below zero, rarified air, low atmospheric pressure and increased ultra-violet light to which they were subjected to on the trip, reported F. C. Meier, plant pathologist of the department of agriculture.

The spores germinated readily after their return.

It was the first time in the history of science that living spores had been sent to such a height above the earth and brought back for scientific analysis. They were carried inside and outside cotton balls tied to the gondola of the balloon.

The spores were those of common fungi that float about everywhere near the earth's surface. Meier sought to learn how high in the air they might travel and live. The tests show, he said, that these spores, too small to be seen without a microscope, are among the hardiest forms of life in existence.

Assured Of New Suits

Fund Left By Baltimore Man Will Benefit Newsboys

Nine newspaper carriers each Christmas day will receive a suit of clothes according to the unique will of Arthur Wallenhurst, Baltimore jeweler and world traveller.

Wallenhurst left certain jewelry to the business managers of three Baltimore newspapers to be sold or raffled, the proceeds to be used to buy suits for three deserving newsboys for each paper every Christmas until the fund should be exhausted.

His largest bequest was one of $50,000 to be used for the erection of a bronze statue to Martin Luther. He provided for the installation of clocks in four city parks.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

LOVELIER THAN DREAM

How can I doubt that all is well,
How can I fear when this I see:
The power of the white moon's spell
Upon the deep's immensity,
The ordered marching of the spheres
That on their endless journey swing,
The faith of every seed that hears
Above earth's cold the call of spring?

How can I dread lest God, who blends
All sounds in one symphonic whole,
Will fail to make divine amends
For every thought of loss or dole?
Forgive me, if one hour I cease
To sense creation's perfect scheme
Its paths of right, its wails of peace,
Its truth far lovelier than dream!

Production In Canada Has Greatly Decreased In Past Ten Years

Production of cheese in Canada had decreased to such an extent that it was being crowded out of the British market, Hon. H. A. Stewart, Minister of Public Works, told members of the Eastern Ontario Cheese-makers' Association.

Mr. Stewart said during the past 10 years there had been a decrease of 30,000,000 pounds in the amount of cheese produced in Canada while butter production had increased by 40,000,000 pounds. The result of this was Canada had been moved into second place in the British market he said.

L. A. Zufelt, superintendent of the Eastern Dairy School at Kingston, stated Canada's best hope for the export dairy trade lay in cheese production.

Must Speak Four Languages

Police In Waltham, Massachusetts, Have To Be Linguists

Unless you can speak four languages, in addition to passing the civil service examination, there is practically no chance of your becoming a policeman in Waltham, Massachusetts. Mayor Patrick J. Duane rejected the names of three men that had been sent to him as being eligible for appointment as patrolman, because they could not speak German, French and Italian. Due to the number of foreign-born residents in the city, the linguistic ability would prove helpful.

Longest Lived Man

Peter Czartan, a Hungarian peasant, is recorded to have been born in 1539 and to have died 1724—he lived 185 years. Thomas Parr is said to have lived 152 years. Methuselah, of bible fame, lived 969 years.

First Working Man In British Cabinet

John Burns Retired From Public Life In 1918

John Burns, the first working man in the United Kingdom to become a cabinet minister, who has recently celebrated his 75th birthday, gave up the post of president of the government board on the declaration of war by the British Government in 1914 and retired from public life altogether about four years afterward.

He never discussed in public the reasons for his retirement. He left parliament at the end of the war, after having represented Battersea in the House of Commons for 26 years. Mr. Burns, who lives on the north side of Clapham Common, is a great authority on London life and history.

Going To South Africa

Government Invites Prince George To Pay Official Visit

Prince George has been officially invited by the Government of the Union of South Africa to visit that country during the early part of next year. His Majesty has approved of the visit, so that the Prince, under present arrangements, will sail from England about the middle of January. This will be Prince George's first visit to South Africa, although he has visited most of the other Colonies of the Empire. Many of his previous visits to foreign countries were paid when he was in the Navy. During that time he saw service with the Mediterranean and Atlantic Fleets, the China Squadron, and on the American and West Indies Station.

Famous Men Good Knitters

One Has Even Invented Special Wool-Winding Machine

The fact that the Prince of Wales recently sent a scarf he had knitted himself to the Personal League of Service has caused a good deal of interest. His Royal Highness is, however, far from being the only celebrated man who finds relaxation in a pair of knitting needles. Lord Jellicoe, like many other sailors, is an expert at knitting. Sir Evelyn De la Rue, of the famous printing family, is also an expert knitter, and even invented a special wool-winding machine for his own benefit.

England Keeps Old Buildings

Removal Of Historic Castles And Abbeys Is Forbidden

Glories of the past are being preserved now before the march of time has destroyed them. In London and the neighboring counties of Middlesex, Surrey, Kent, Essex and Hertford, there are about 250 castles, abbeys, and other historic buildings, and relics which have been scheduled as "ancient monuments," and as such they must not be removed or interfered with in any way.

Canadians Using More Snuff.

Canadians are chewing more snuff. In September, 1932, a total of 71,254 pounds of snuff were imported into Canada, a bulletin from the department of national revenue tells us. This year, for September, the total was up to 74,899 pounds. That is a sign of recovery that cannot be sneezed at.

Little Helps For This Week

"Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat or what ye shall drink, nor yet for your body what ye shall put on."—Matthew 6:25.

One there lives whose loving eye
Guides our earthly destiny;
One there lives, who Lord of all,
Keeps His children lest they fall;
Live we then in love and praise,
Trusting Him through all our days,
Free from doubt and faithless sorrow.
God provideth for the morrow.
—R. Heber.

It has been well said that no man ever sank under the burden of the day. It is when tomorrow's burden is added to the burden of today that the weight is more than a man can bear. Do not carry this load at any time. If you find yourself so loaded at least remember this, it is your own doing, not God's. He begs you to leave the future to Him and think only of the present.—G. MacDonald.

One evening when Luther saw a little bird perched on a tree to roost there for the night he said: "This little bird has had its supper and is now getting ready to go to sleep quite secure and content, never troubling itself what its food will be or where it will lodge tomorrow. Like David it abides under the shadow of the Almighty. It is content and lets God take care of it."

Canadian Legion

Ottawa Woman Is Made Life Member Of Organization

Years of self-sacrificing devotion to the cause of the ex-service men of Canada were recognized in a ceremony which saw Mrs. A. J. Freiman, of Ottawa, invested as an honorary life member of the Canadian Legion.

Attended by the executive officers of the Ottawa Branch and by high officials of the Legion, the ceremony took place in Mrs. Freiman's home. Major John S.
